What we do in Albuquerque

In Albuquerque we manufacture underground cable connections and accessories for the electrical distribution grid as well as fault circuit indicators and current sensors. Our industry-leading Elastimold and Fisher Pierce products are used to connect, ground, splice, terminate, and protect underground power cables.

Who we serve

Products manufactured in Albuquerque are integral connective pieces of a resilient power grid. Found in underground power line systems in neighborhoods across the U.S., our products are primarily used by electric utility companies to deliver reliable power to homes and businesses.
