

Whenever separate elements are joined together, the whole is often much more than the sum of its parts. This thought is reflected in different ways in this issue of ABB Review.

Transportation is about connecting people and places. It broadens horizons and makes trade possible. Connection can also be about collaboration. ABB serves systems suppliers in the railway industry with its broad product portfolio. Learn more about ABB's contribution to railways and transportation in the pages of this ABB Review.